

User license and license code

PrivateGSM license can have the following states:

- Full: you have a valid license.
- Subscription: you have a license that is valid for a time limited period
- Trial: you have a license that is valid for a 15 days trial period
- Expired: the license is expired

Upon first installation PrivateGSM Professional grants you a 15-day trial license with full functionality. At the end of the trial period the software automatically switches to expired mode and you cannot dial neither receive secure calls anymore.

The trial period will be activated only at the first installation on a specific device.

License Migration

PrivateGSM license is bound to your device and SIM card.

- If you change your device and move your SIM card into your new device, your license will be automatically migrated to new device.
- If you change your SIM (eg: move to a new mobile operator) and insert a new SIM, your license status will be preserved.

Automatic license migration from one iPhone to a new device is NOT supported due to some platform constraints imposed by the operation system. Request a manual license migration from PrivateWave before changing your iPhone.

Trial period is NOT supported on iPhone, due to legal constraints imposed by the Terms & Conditions of App Store.

License status icon (Android and BlackBerry)

On Android and Blackberry platform you can also check the license state from the main screen of PrivateGSM. The license icon reflects the current license state:

	Trial period
	Receive Only mode
	Waiting for server response after license code activation
	Full license
